

National Security Campaign - radio script

In this advertisement, we overhear various conversations with ambient SFX.

Man: "...some guy had a bag full of batteries, mobiles, passports and bundles of cash..."

Woman: "...there was some stuff on his laptop about ISIS and being a hero in Syria."

Man: "...I saw a bin full of empty chemical bottles and a car battery..."

The man's voice trails off and over it we hear a voice over.

Voice over: With the ongoing threat of terrorism we all need to play a part by reporting anything suspicious. Calls to the National security Hotline have already contributed to investigations so if something doesn't add up, speak up by calling 1800 123 400 and help keep Australia safe from terrorism.

Voice over: Authorised by the Australian Government, Canberra. Spoken by Andrew Peters.
